A Message from Dave

Yesterday

Yesterday all my troubles seemed so far away. Now it looks as though they're here to stay. Oh, I believe in yesterday.

Diane and I went to see the new movie, "Yesterday." As I looked around in the theater I noticed the average age of the patrons was around mine, which by the time the magazine comes out will be 63. It sort of reminded me of the average age of the car show attendees.

In the movie, the main character had an accident right at the time the whole world lost power, much like how it was to be in Y2K, if you all remember all the way back to 1999. Anyway, when he woke up from a coma, he was the only one whom could remember the Beatles, and he capitalized on singing the songs as they were his own. Turns out only two other people in the movie remembered the Beatles. It was like the group never existed. This all got me to thinking, will there only be a handful of people that remembers our cars or care about them when we are gone?

Some of you have embraced what the Custom & Classic Car Educational Foundation is trying to do. Some haven't, but should try to find out a little bit. You can always read Doug's column each issue, or come out on September 22nd to the car show at Harford Winery. Our fall show is sponsored by Maryland Performance Specialties. Please come out and have a good time, meet up with some old friends, and learn how you can save the hobby.

So next year in 2020, the average of our hobby will be 64. Kind of reminds me of another Beatles song, "When I'm 64." Will you still need me, will you still feed me, when I'm sixty-four? We all need each other to help preserve our rides for the next generations. I hope you will do your part by taking a kid to a car show, or putting a couple of bucks in the Foundations kitty. I know most of you are as passionate as I am when it comes to the cars from our younger years. My hope is each time you hear old song playing it reminds you that you should take time now to ensure someone in the future will have that same passion for your car as you do. Foundation Update

by Doug Wood

Doug is President of the Classic and Custom Car Educational Foundation

Well gang, here we are halfway through summer, as I write this! The weather hasn't been hateful, so hopefully you've been able to enjoy your big girl and boy toys!

On a personal note, I managed to take a fall and broke my hip while I was working out around my car trailer and the Freaky Tiki. Take it from me, keep your work area free of debris and tools so that you don't trip over them....the results can be catastrophic!

I am proud to announce that Maryland Performance Specialties will be sponsoring our fall car show on September 22 at the Harford Vineyard and Winery. Make it a point to come up and support the foundation as well as MPS, the only speed shop in our local area!

Our Bull and Oyster Roast is shaping up to be pretty awesome. We will have live music by the Back Pages Band, raffles, an auction or two and a 50-50. All of that in addition to excellent food and surroundings! Mark your calendar and plan on being there!! As promised... Tickets are now available; you can purchase them online through our website savethehobby.org. A table costs $400 (seats eight and in advance only), individual tickets are $55 in advance and $65 at the door. I hope that we'll see you there!

So, until I see you again... Please remember to bring a kid, whether it's your grandchildren, children or even a neighbor to a car show. We need young people getting interested and involved in our sport.

See you on the return road!!!

Coming up- Mark your Calendars- October 25th-27th The Metal Meet at Ron's Rods

Come out and learn restoration basics. Please bring a young person with you. Hosted by the Custom & Classic Car Educational Foundation- Kingsville, Md. Must RSVP.

As Dewey's health has declined from cancer, it was a great day to reminisce and thank him for all he has done for our hobby.

Reader's Rides

Dewey's Hyle's '55

Dewey Hyle's '55 Chevy was the star of the cruise held in his honor recently by the Mason Dixon Car Club. Dewey has owned the car since 1962 when he purchased it for the lofty sum of $65. The body-off restoration began in 2009, and was finally completed in 2011, when he began showing it.

To appreciate the hard work you have to see it in the sunlight where the Sonoma Red Jewel paint just blows you away. The Crager SS wheels really set off the paint and the interior is custom with white rolled & pleated seats.

It is powered by a built up 388 inch Chevrolet engine, built by Warrior Engines, backed up by a Borg Warner T10 4 speed.

Have a Car or Truck with an interesting story? Or some cool old photos?
Why not share it with our readers and see it printed in the magazine!

Our July Cover Car 1954 Cadillac "Die Valkyrie"

In 1952, a Cleveland real estate baron named Metzenbaum wanted a modern car with the spirit of the great early-1940s. He wanted the luxury of the Lincoln Continental and the power of Cadillac's brilliant overhead-valve V-8, first offered for 1949. Famed Milwaukee-based industrial designer Brooks Stevens did the rest. The result was called Die Valkyrie, after Brunhilde and the other mythical "sisters of the wind" immortalized in Wagnerian opera. Per Metzenbaum's wishes, Stevens began with the 125-inch-wheelbase chassis and 331-cubic-inch V-8 of the contemporary Cadillac Series Sixty-Two.

Leaving both pretty much alone, he replaced the stock body with a striking four-seat steel convertible shell bearing rakish long-hood/short-deck proportions and both a solid removable roof panel and a skimpy "rag top." The last, Stevens recalled, was only for "getting you home if it started to rain."

Die Valkyrie's most radical aspect by far was its huge, sharply vee'd combination bumper/grille, deliberately chosen to emphasize what was under the hood. One wag snidely termed it a "snowplow," but at least it was different. Small parking lamps were set into the V's wide outriggers, which bisected the headlamps before wrapping around to continue as side moldings.

Several elements make Die Valkyrie look a lot newer now than it actually is. Recessed cowed headlamps and a flat hood nearly level with the front fenders forecast Big Three styling by at least three years. In the 1960s, Cadillac itself would adopt taillights much like Die Valkyrie's compact, vertically vee'd units.

This was also Stevens' first use of the "Washington coach" door line with its distinctive upward sweep that not only concealed long door openings (for easier back-seat access) but made a natural two-tone color break — highlighted in the starkest possible way with white forward and black rearward. Fan-motif inner door panels were equally distinctive. The dash was stock 1953 Cadillac.

To build Die Valkyrie, Stevens enlisted the Spohn Works of Ravensburg, West Germany, mainly for its meticulous craftsmanship. Metzenbaum made noises about backing up 100 copies, and the car did cause a minor stir at the 1953 Paris Auto Show, but just six Die Valkyries would ever be built.

Stevens believes only three came to the U.S. The one shown here, number two, was once driven by Mrs. Stevens. You can see it at the Brooks Stevens Museum in suburban Mequon, Wisconsin, just north of Milwaukee.
